Now I want to tell you about my favorite novel I read during childhood.

To begin with, the name of book is "Howli" by Rudyard Kipling. This story is about a boy who lives in the jungles with wild animals. He is a friend with a bear Baloo, a snake Kaa and others. The tiger Shere Khan wants to kill Howli, because human must live in jungles. Howli's friends help him during the story. The story ends with winning Shere Khan and Howli becomes a leader of animals. The protagonist of this novel is a boy named Mowgli. He considers himself as an animal because he was living with them his entire life. He is brave and he is not afraid to fight with wild animals. The bear Baloo is hilarious and funny. He always helps Howli when he needs it. The snake Kaa is a mysterious character, but he helps Mowgli too. The tiger Shere Khan is violent and he wants to kill Mowgli.

I think this book makes a strong impact on me because it teaches us to be confident and brave as Mowgli. It would be interesting for children because it's a fascinating story with an interesting plot and great characters.
