Teaching incident.

A young boy was so bored so he just started to play with a ball inside of his house. One wrong move and a window in a nearby broken and the ball is bouncing on pieces of glass outside. His father noticed that of course. He was so furious and threaten so his son had to run out of the house to escape father's rage. Father decided to read a book on a couch to calm down but eventually, he understood it's been a while since his son ran away and he doesn't know where he can be. He stood up of a couch and started to pace the floor. Time was doing by but a boy still hasn't come back home. A man put his coat on and went outside hoping to find his son himself. He was walking around streets and yelling boy's name. He had to come back home with nothing and he decided to just wait and hope for the best. He was literally a couple steps away from his house door when a ball flew out of one of windows and hit him right in a head. Suddenly, his son ran out of the house. He was so happy to see him, so he forgave him immediately and embrace him tightly.
